

A Tribute To Scott Fraser

Presented by Atlantic Cat at Scotia Speedworld, Halifax, Nova Scotia

Scott and His Angel

You might believe he is not around to listen,
So when you find yourself feeling kind of low,
While there is nowhere on earth you really want to go...
Look toward the sky to see him glisten.

Search deep within yourself
And here you can feel Him in the confines of your heart
That He and his Archangel have become "Oneself"
While we have been left worlds' apart.

A Smile you should feel upon your face
The sun, it will soon shine...
You hear his voice so calm and feel only his embrace
Saying to all "Everything will be just fine."

At times you may feel alone,
He would not leave us alone at all...
For He and His Angels presence will always be known...
All we have to do is bow our heads and call.

For an Angels love is always true,
These beautiful souls we shall depend...
To keep us all from being so blue without you...
For in Him, we all had more than a great friend.

From the darkest hours to brighter days,
He and his Angel will always send...
A path to guide our way,
With cross roads here and there, for us to rest and mend.

And in the end...
His place in Heaven has been secured,
For this, we can all be assured.

Scott Fraser's Racing Legacy To Live On

Plans have been announced for the Scott Fraser Racing Memorial Fund. Scott's dad, well known retired racer Frank Fraser, will field a racecar for young up and coming racer Shawn Turple in two races later this year. Currently, the goal is for the The Atlantic Cat 250 (August 13 and 14) at Scotia Speedworld to be the teams first race.

Helping other racers was something Scott Fraser and his team were known for, having been selected by their peers on several occasions to receive Most Helpful Crew Awards.

Donations to the Fund can be sent to P.O. Box 105, Shubenecadie, NS, B0N 2H0 or by supporting today's Silent Auction (see bottom of this page).
